Breaking News

We're thrilled to announce that DFI Interiors has a new home in Newton Corner with two key goals in mind:

- Enhanced Client Experience: This new location brings us closer to many of you and our valued suppliers.
- Expanded Design Inspiration: We now have a larger space to store all our selection of samples – all handpicked with your design dreams in mind!

Summer Spruce-Up: Your Child's Room

With summer break in full swing, it's the perfect time to tackle a project for the whole family! For parents, why not take advantage of this downtime by reorganizing your child's room as they move on to the next grade?

Here are a few tips to get you started:

- Sort & Donate: Gather lightly used toys, clothes, and books (with your child's input) to donate to a worthy cause. For the old school supplies, go over all the drawings, handbooks and school material and decide what will bring you joy (thank you Marie Kondo) in 10 years when you will reopen that box and what will not. Keep the art that they really worked on and not scribbled on, the essays but discard the math and ELA sheets. Go to the Container store and buy some cleared archived boxes that you will label with your child's name, school year.

- Clean thoroughly their rooms to get them ready for the year: vacuum and clean all closets, drawers, bookshelves. Carpet clean or bring their rug to the dry cleaner. Touch up the paint.
- Redesign the room to follow your children's growth: isn't it incredible how fast they change within a school year? What they liked at the beginning of the year feels babyish at the end.

They have outgrown their book, their room was themed as dinosaur loving and we are now moving to the spacial theme? What used to be a kids room, now needs to be a tween or teen's room? Now is the time to tackle these changes. You do not need to break the bank to make these small changes. Sometimes, it is just a question of accessorizing the right way (check Etsy out for decals, fun pillows or art).

EDITOR'S NOTE

our top trends for the fall

A Warm Shift

As we move forward, the design world is embracing a warmer aesthetic.

Here's what's trending:

- Beige is back, but this time it's shaking off its dated reputation. Earthy beige tones are taking center stage, creating calming and sophisticated backdrops for your home. Think cozy retreats bathed in a warm, natural glow.

Think of beige as the canvas, and taupes and greens as the artistic accents. Together, they create a beautifully balanced and inviting space.

- Beyond Beige: A Symphony of Neutrals
While we adore beige (Balboa Mist, Pale Oak, and Calm are a few of our favorites!), don't forget the power of its complementary companions: warm off-whites and taupes. These hues add subtle contrast and depth, preventing your space from feeling flat.

- Nature's Touch: Organic shapes and textures are taking center stage, bringing the outdoors in. Think limestone, wood, iron, steel, and pottery – a return to natural materials.

Examples of the latest CB2 Collection. Iron coffee table, walnut side table, sandstone lamp and marble vase.

- Warm Colors & Earthy Palettes: Rich, inviting colors like terracotta, rust, greens, and browns are trending, grounding your space. Think beyond cool grays and embrace warm metals like bronze, brass, and gold for added character.

Bringing a new Vision to life

We're thrilled to share details about our recent project: a stunning 7,000 square foot home in Lexington. This project was a dream come true, allowing us complete design freedom from the ground up. From the exterior finishes to the interior details, we were involved in every aspect, including flooring, metalwork, lighting fixtures, and custom-designed built-ins and kitchen design.

We embraced an organic theme, incorporating wood accents, retro lighting, and open fireplaces with integrated bookshelves. The space is further enhanced with eye-catching wallpaper, playful tile choices, and carefully selected light fixtures. This home exudes a peaceful ambiance thanks to thoughtful color schemes and meticulous attention to detail.

Stay tuned for more photos and a full project reveal on our website soon!
